What is Emotional Intelligence?

It's not how intelligent we are, but how we are intelligent. At the most basic level, Emotional Intelligence is the ability to recognize, understand and manage your emotions and behavior effectively.

What are the Components of Emotional Intelligence?

The most widely accepted model of emotional intelligence (EI) has been influenced by several scientists and researchers. Howard Gardner's (1983) theory of multiple intelligence lists interpersonal and intrapersonal intelligence as unique and different from the mathematical/logical type recognized today as "IQ" or general intelligence. Peter Salovey and John Mayer first proposed their theory of EI in 1990 and Reuven Bar-On (1988) has placed EI in the context of health and well-being. Daniel Goleman (1998) formulated EI in terms of a theory of organizational and job performance.

All these models, however, share a common core of basic concepts including Self-Awareness, Self-Management, Social Awareness, and Relationship Management.

	Perception	Behavior
Self	Self- Awareness	Self- Management
Others	Social Awareness	Relationship Management

What is the Association between Emotional Intelligence and Effectiveness?

A growing research literature suggests that Emotional Intelligence may play a far more important role in career success and job performance than IQ. Studies suggest that:

Highly conscientious employees who lack social and emotional intelligence perform more poorly than those high in conscientiousness and emotional intelligence

On average, strengths in purely cognitive capacities are approximately 27 percent more frequent in high performers than in the average performers, whereas strengths in social and emotional competencies are 53 percent more frequent

The highest performing managers and leaders have significantly more "emotional competence" than other managers

Poor social and emotional intelligence are strong predictors of executive and management "derailment" and failure in one's career

Self-Awareness and Social Awareness View Summary

This section provides feedback about your level of self and social awareness by comparing your own ratings to those of others across the 17 Emotional Intelligence competencies.

	Perception	Behavior
Self	Self- Awareness	Self- Management
Others	Social Awareness	Relationship Management

Self-awareness and Social-awareness can be categorized in four distinct ways:

1. Potential Strengths (Low Self-ratings and High Other ratings)
2. Confirmed Strengths (High Self-ratings and High Other ratings)
3. Potential Development Areas (High Self-ratings and Low Other ratings)
4. Confirmed Development Areas (Low Self-Ratings and Low Other ratings)

Examine which specific emotional intelligence competencies fall into each of these four categories. It is important to leverage those categorized as Confirmed/Potential Strengths and possibly consider ways to enhance skills and effectiveness in those categorized as Confirmed/Potential Development Areas.

Self-Management and Relationship Management View Summary

This section provides feedback about your level of self-management and relationship management behaviors by comparing your own ratings to those of others across the 17 Emotional Intelligence competencies.

	Perception	Behavior
Self	Self- Awareness	Self- Management
Others	Social Awareness	Relationship Management

Each emotional intelligence competency will be summarized by a series of graphs comparing average scores of self-ratings to those of others who have provided you with feedback (1 to 7 frequency scale) in the areas of 1) Self-Management; 2) Relationship Management and 3) Communication.

Differences of .75 or more might suggest significant perceptual differences between your own self-ratings compared to others providing you with feedback.

The bar graphs below compare your own average self ratings to those of the other raters for each of the 17 Emotional Intelligence View 360 competencies. The thin line within the bar graph represents the range of scores (1 to 7) for your own self ratings and those of others across all questions measuring each specific competency. The first column to the right of the bar graph (Avs) represents the average or means score for each rater group and the second column (N) indicates the number of raters who have provided you with feedback. If less than two raters have provided you with feedback (except for your own supervisor or manager), the symbol AP (anonymity protection) will be indicated in the second column.

Overall Item Summary

The average score for each emotional intelligence competency and specific questions are summarized below for each rater category (1 to 7 frequency scale with higher scores corresponding to more frequently observed behavior). The average scores for each Emotional Intelligence View 360 competency and specific questions are summarized below. The number in parentheses next to the average score is an index or measure of rater agreement. The range of scores for this statistical measure of rater agreement is 0 to 1 where "1" represents total agreement by all raters. A score closer to "0" suggests that there exists a wider level of disagreement among raters in their perceptions of how frequently you demonstrate specific actions and behaviors. The higher the agreement score, the greater the consistency and agreement among raters. An agreement score less than .50 might suggest that you interpret the average score with caution as it might not truly represent an accurate indication of how you are perceived by all raters providing you with feedback.

DEVELOPMENT AREAS

Participant:

Others:

Developing collaborative relationships
Effective team leadership

Unaware of how communication/interactions are perceived by others
Communications are perceived as aggressive and directive, rather than open and collaborative.

Impatient when attempting to gain the buy in of other group members
Very concerned with own 'status' and feels respect/responsiveness are 'owed' by less senior staff.

Chris has her own unique management style that lends itself to a staff that is self motivated, qualified, and committed to their job responsibilities. She expects the best from everyone and demands attention to detail.

Chris sometimes allows incompetent employees to hang around too long. Better communication, feedback, and action plans to solve unacceptable behavior would be beneficial.

It does appear that at times she is overwhelmed with many tasks and her staff, at times, may take the back seat in the list of corporate priorities.

Provides little feedback on performance unless negative,
Is not very good at communicating information in a timely manner; frequently creates information bottle necks.

Appears not to have real respect from subordinates, peers and above.
Competitive behavior often alienate others

Chris has a great desire to take on new projects, yet has an increasing amount of difficulty in follow-through once she adds new tasks. She tends to forget to disseminate information when needed. Although Chris has strong written skills, when Chris writes informally or in haste, her communication is often unclear and difficult to understand, and therefore requires follow-up for clarification. Chris's challenges are in the area of team building and forging strong working relationships among her peers and subordinates.

Chris maintains a degree of distance from her subordinates that has her appear unapproachable. She is quick to criticize others sharply rather than provide feedback in a safe, constructive manner. She is emotionally sensitive when feeling that her performance has been questioned, yet can be harsh and impatient in her view of others. This leaves others with an experience of fear of repercussion, with Chris appearing imperious, inconsistent, unpredictable and egocentric.

She does not recognize the outstanding accomplishments of her staff and interact with them positively. This is counterproductive to the team effort of her division. Decisions about major issues need to be more timely to be effective.

List three development areas based upon your Emotional Intelligence View 360 results (i.e., behaviors you will do more, less or differently for successful performance in your current job or position):

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

The purpose of your Emotional Intelligence View 360 feedback is to assist you to develop your managerial competencies. Developing skills can be challenging because it almost always means replacing current behavior with a new pattern of behavior. This is not easy! Research suggests that desired change is more likely to be successful when:

- The desired competency is specifically defined
- There is commitment and motivation to change behavior
- An action plan is shared with others
- An analysis is made of reasons for potential lack of success
- Other people support your behavior change
- The behavioral outcomes are visible and can be measured

The action plan worksheet on the next page will assist you in developing one of the competencies you have identified based on the results of your Emotional Intelligence View 360. As you begin your action plan, consider the following:

- Focus on being specific
- Use the recommendations in your feedback report as a basis for your behavioral plan
- Keep your plan simple and put it in writing
- Define how to monitor and evaluate results
