

Facilitator profile – Malcolm McFarlane

(Dip(A) Log, DipCMI, MCILT)

Malcolm is an experienced supply chain and contract management practitioner and change consultant, now specialising in People Capability Development and Change Management. His career began in the British Army where, alongside leadership and management skills, his supply chain and contract management expertise was developed and sharpened in the most challenging of circumstances. Rising through the ranks from Private to Lieutenant-Colonel, he has experience of building capability across the organisational spectrum, applying an impressive suite of hard and soft management skills.

In his second career over the last 12 years, Malcolm has held a variety of procurement, contract and project / change management roles. And, latterly, he has applied his skills and experience in consultancy, mentoring, coaching and developing people capability. Recent clients have included the UK Nuclear Decommissioning Agency, UK MOD, Aviva, Portsmouth Water, Lewisham Homes, Wandle Housing and Hanover Housing.

Malcolm has a Chartered Management Institute Diploma in Strategic Management and Leadership, an Advanced Diploma in Logistics and is a Commercial and Contract Management Practitioner. Malcolm is also a qualified and experienced PRINCE2 and APM Project / Programme Manager. He is co-author of 'Private Sector by Head, Public Sector by Heart', a text that aids commercial and procurement professionals in the practical application of learnings in their real-world environments.

Malcolm is based in Scotland.
